

Terms of Use

Any party shall be allowed to use the information (hereinafter referred to as the “Contents”) that is published at the databank website of the Division of Policy and Planning Sciences Commons, as long as it complies with the terms of use as set forth in (1) and (2) below (hereinafter referred to as the “Rules of Use”) and the license terms as indicated in the remarks section (hereinafter referred to as the “License Terms”). In addition, as any numerical data, simple tables/graphs, etc. are not regarded as copyrighted materials, they can be used freely without being bound by these Rules of Use or the License Terms. Each party using the Contents is deemed to have consented to these Rules of Use and the License Terms.

(1) EACH USER MUST REFRAIN FROM INFRINGING ANY THIRD-PARTY RIGHTS.

- A. Some of the Contents may contain information or materials to which third parties (i.e., any parties that are not University of Tsukuba; the same shall apply hereafter) own copyrights or other types of rights. Therefore, each user shall be solely responsible for contacting and obtaining from such third parties permission to use any such Contents that the third parties have the copyrights or other rights to (i.e., photos that are protected by their portrait or publicity rights, etc.), except for the Contents for which it is expressly stated that all necessary licenses have been duly obtained.
- B. For some Contents for which third-party rights exist, it is directly or indirectly indicated or implied in references, etc. that third parties own the rights to those Contents. However, for other Contents, no specification, indication, etc. are provided as to which parts of the Contents are protected by third-party rights in a clear manner. Therefore, each user must verify these points on its own responsibility before using the Contents.
- C. As for any Contents that have been obtained from external databases, etc. through APIs (Application Programming Interfaces), etc., each user must comply with the terms of use as specified by those outside parties that are providing the Contents.
- D. Even if any given Contents are protected by third-party rights, there are cases where the Contents may be used without obtaining the consent of those copyright holders, etc., when quoting the Contents, etc. pursuant to the applicable copyright laws.

(2) INDEMNITIES

- A. University of Tsukuba shall be exempted from all responsibilities in regard to any act that the users may perform concerning their use of the Contents (including use of information that has been created by editing, processing, or otherwise using the Contents).
- B. Any of the Contents may be modified, relocated, deleted, etc. without prior notice.